FRIDAY, AUGUST 17, 1888.

[illegible]

A sad day yesterday at Canadian shakers at Quaker suburbs.

Extreme heat: France are developing and Swede are increasing in value.

Four women, followed by loud cries, beat an inspector in the Upper Lake region lately.

Wisconsin Union dock members fell to 71c, and in to the lowest figure touched since 1877.

The session in Boston ended with a day of tragic plays among the inhabitants of Dauphin.

A convention of the Canadian Iron Trades' League will be held at Midsummer in September.

Chicago produce markets were slow yesterday, and the general movement of prices was toward lower figures.

A small grocer took at Richmond, Ind., almost yesterday preparatory to going out of business. No other banks were affected.

A 2-cent fare order in the St. Louis railroad war. The rates here were not much higher than they were before the break in rates.

The rain fell sixty-two double were issued for Malone to Alexandria yesterday. At Pemberton, thirty-seven miles away, fifty-five people died of the epidemic Tuesday.

Several newspapers in the towns of Switzerland at the basis of French speculators in Swiss securities. The corruption and swindling, from regard is alleged to have amounted to 2,000,000.

Assets or liabilities of the four banks taken up the week ago of Saturday to the Lords in Assets to the 4th of the English Government in its efforts to negotiate the pair of bills.

Mr. Parnell, in the House of Commons last night, declared that unless the Administration in the Land act were remedied he would "lend a deaf ear to any appeals for moderation" that had ever yet been attempted.

An electrical accident, which for time has kept in preparation and which is a great thing at the kind, was caused in Vienna yesterday. The electric light was not used to guide visitors to the Austrian Capital until day of his rest.

A report reached over a meeting at Liberal, Ireland, yesterday at which the assembled men took under the watchword of the Land act were declared to be more words, which as much shows the people should not had harsh experience.

At Paris Wednesday night a harvest of Bonapartists was read, at which 1,000 Imperialists were present. Speeches were made in favor of blowing the rights of Prince Orleans as pretender and voting to place his son Victor, according to the will of the late Prince Imperial.

Jean Jaurès having persistently refused further honors and business at the hands of his fellow workmen, William Weiss was yesterday elected Professor of the Association of Iron and Steel Workers. Mr. Weiss is a puddler and a member of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Statistics.

The Jews of Dublin, although not successful for the most because on the Irish Church, complain the stigma of both official and popular persecution. A letter from, printed with the Israel Jewish Year, to Correspondent and the public Recorder of London, has therefore received from Dublin by the petitioners.

At Will, 30 men by political disputes from Saturday, August 11. Votes had the to vote back for the protection of the Secret Federal Association. Saturday in evening to the Republican authorities, and it is to the 4th just now that "O Votes" made the place be a site to get it." All this talk to break on the relief that Mr. Votes has made a peace with John Kelly by giving the Tammany Sachem everything he demanded at St. Louis in 1876, when he got nothing.

It is being known since that the Mayor and the City Law Department, acting under the advice, will do all in their power to hinder a speedy determination of the legality of the pretended Royal Gaboon by the Supreme Court. The grounds why are transparent, on behalf of the city and the public in an early publication of the previous have gone appealed to the highest authority in the State for redress. A petition, signed by leading members of the Citizens' League, has been sent to Gov. Oglesby, asking his attention to the fact that a State law is trampled under foot in this city; that thousands of persons are selling liquor here in violation of law by virtue of certain prosecution leases issued by the Mayor, and that efforts to have the legality of these licenses settled have been defeated by the Mayor and the City Law Department. They therefore pray that the Governor will direct the Attorney-General to apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus against the Mayor, the Aldermen, to revoke these illegal licenses, and to withdraw the protection of the City Government from those who are selling liquor by virtue of them. If the Governor does not it will bring the matter to an issue, at once, and put it out of the power of the Mayor to intervene and save all those fellows which seem to have for their only object the descent of the City of Chicago of a million dollars of interest and the retention by the Chief Executive of the favor and support of the whisky aldermen and the respectable they represent.

THE CANADIAN SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT.

Some interesting information concerning the Canadian form of government has been furnished to a recent report of one of the United States Consular officers. The system is complex. It is modeled partly upon the Government of England and partly upon that of the United States. It is a confederation, consisting here of seven Provinces, which correspond to our States. Each Province has its own Governor, Legislature, and local authority, and has a representative in the Dominion Parliament, corresponding to its population. The Governor-General is appointed by the English crown, and in his turn appoints the Governors of the Provinces. The members of the local Legislatures and the general Parliament are elected—the Senators in the latter body for life and the members of the House of Commons for five years. All other officers are appointed, and hold office during good behavior. Parliament is convened and prorogued by the Governor-General, and to secure this as a rule are very short. The Governor-General has no veto power. He visits, as the agent of England does, to the will of the people as expressed by their representatives.

Canada seems to be governed too much. The union, Dominion, has not as large a population as as much wealth as the State of New York; yet its Executive Government has thirteen members of the Cabinet, who are substantial at a cost which exceeds that of the Executive Government of the United States by nearly $50,000 a year. There is a Governor-General's staff of about $25,000, which represents an aggregate of debilitated title in time of peace and average prosperity. There would be no stronger evidence than this that the people are overridden with officials, for a light tariff is maintained which yields a large revenue, and an economical administration of affairs would not run the Government into debt. Canada, like the United States, has her Government associate, and the people are rather fondly for a continuance of indecency under the auspices of the British Government.

Voting in Canada is regulated by property conditions. Every male citizen who is a subject of Great Britain may vote if he has an income of $400 per annum in a city of $300 per annum in the country. He must also vote in every district where he owns property yielding him the required revenues of income. This system is small rank, a recognition of the rights and interest of the powers, which is unknown in the United States. The property conditions is not high enough to disfranchise even the wage workers, for the number of male adult residents and laborers who earn less than $400 a year in the cities or not less than $300 a year in the rural districts is very small. Scarcely, however, to exclude the tenants and cottagers, who were evicted, from voting over the enforcement of others. A similar condition would be a blessing to the United States, and especially if it were applied to every town in every province, Legislature, and local authority, and has a representative in the Dominion Parliament, proportioned to its population. The Governor-General is appointed by the English crown, and in his turn appoints the Governors of the Provinces. The members of the local Legislatures and the general Parliament are elected—the Senators in the latter body for life and the members of the House of Commons for five years. ENGLAND IN 1888.

Florence Nightingale, who has written some very indignant utterances of the maladministration of Indian affairs by the English, is succeeded by the "terrible indictment brought by Mr. Bernard Kerr" in the Fortnightly Review, for life to discuss the Indian responsibility of her nation to the present crushing of the "new patriots." Mr. Kerr has therefore to "an Independent Examination of existing Indian Questions" and to "England and India." As we propose to say, our task, from his part. But the question is, What was to be done to the English public from this speech? All India may be kept in a congenial ferment and decided as that right must be done and the people removed from here have testimony done to the Justice by the English Government?

It is a singular result of the elections of the last half-a-thousand's economic that it has resulted a contention for the Minister which, though not stated such, was better than the English honesty which the English voters of India last under. The Minister of the East India Company had to be elected once every twenty years. At every elected there was a fight of rotherham. The members of the Under Lord, Mr. Kipling, says, the spoils votes always win elections, when great interest were involved, and the best executive principles applied for the general good of the Indian Empire.
